

Do not let fail the people, hold open, public hearings. The proposed changes due not benefit the people, the true owners of the airwaves, and are detrimental to a healthy democracy. The airwaves should reflect diversity of viewpoints, opinions and information. There are many venues, such as at work, in a car, on a bus, train or subway and other difficult to reach locations, where the radio is the only effective method of broadcast. For many people it is their primary, or sole source of news and information and thus vital to an informed public and functioning democracy.
